Motherly Catfish.

Mr. Gunther, in his work on "The study of Fishes," states that the only species of fish in which the mother takes any care of her offspring are of the genera Aspredo and Solenostoma. But I have seen the common catfish guarding her young in the most devoted manner; it and Edward Harrington are going to Newaygo this morning to spend a couple of days at Bear lake with Newaygo friends. lake, in the great northern wilderness of New York state. The cathah had got her young (fifty or sixty in the school I should say) into a little bay so shallow that her enemies could not swim in it. The young catfishes were very small in-deed and looked like little tadpoles. Whenever anyone of the little fellows ventured into a deepish place he was sure to be seized by some large fish, the large fish seemed to be perch and there were half a dozen or so of them. Every perch that came near was at-tacked by the mother fish and driven back several feet or yards; but when-ever the mother fish turned to go back to her young one or more of the perch would bite her. Her caudal fin, or tail, was torn to pieces. I watched the battle for some time. The old catfish was getting the worst of it, and when I left she was making a brave but losing fight. One by one her offspring were picked off, the perch occasionally rushing into the shallow water close to nent Person, "although I am by no means sure that we shall learn it."

"The height at which the balloon was when the accident happened has been variously computed," the Journalist said, "but it seems to have been higher than the top of St. Paul's cathedral, according to the computation almost cording to one computation almost double the height. So one can imagine a little how terrible the fall must have

"I should like to be at that height above London occasionally," said the poet; "one could realize the unimportance of a lot of unimportant things so much better. When men appeared to me to be the size of the ordinary housefly, a difference of income, for instance, would seem to be too small to be worth consideration. We know how high above the earth there is a breathable atmosphere; I wonder how high one would have to go before one lost one's sense of social status."

"You can do that without going up in a balloon," the Ordinary Man observed. "Mix with your superiors, and you are bound to believe in social equality. Mix with your equals and you'll still be

"And if I mix with my inferiors?" "Now, why take impossible cases?" said the Mere Boy genially.—Black and

Stopping a Nuisance.

A little pantomime performance which was seen on an express train rushing into New York Sunday evening is worth recording. A young woman had opened her window, to her enjoyment, but to the evident annoyance of a young man seated directly behind her. There was much dust and cinders, and his light clothes and fresh linen got the benefit of all there was. He submitted to the shower for a few seconds, then took s folded newspaper and held it in front of him and close to the side of the ear, so that all the cinders that came in were blown directly against the neck of the girl. She edged away farther and far ther, but usolessly, for a perfect cloud of dust and cinders settled all over her, instead of flying back on those behind her, as the open window nuisance has the right of precedent to expect. She finally could stand it no longer and put the window down, whereapon the young man, having accomplished his object, shook out his newspaper and quietly pursued his reading of it, while two or three passengers behind the pair exchanged glances of amused satisfaction.-Her Point of View in New York Times.

The Yankee Was Honest.

An English gentleman met an Ameri can traveler in France and spent a few days with him in Paris. When they werparting the American admitted that he had cleaned out his purse and must perforce remain in Paris until he could get more money from home. The Englishman lent him twenty louis, and the American in return gave his watch as security, taking at the same time his address on a card. The cynic will surmise that the watch turned out to be worthless, but, so far from that, it has been valued at above thirty pounds. Possibly the owner of it mislaid his creditor's address; he has never repaid the money or reclaimed the watch .-

Suggestions for a Summer Trip. If you wish to take the trip of a lifetime, purchase the low rate excursion tickets sold by all principal lines in the United States and Canada via the Northern Pacific railroad to Yellow-stone National Park, Pacific coast and

The trip is made with the highest de-gree of comfort in the elegant vesti-buled trains of the Northern Pacific railroad, which carry dining cars and luxurious Pullman sleeping cars from Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis to Montana and the Pacific coast, without change, and special Pullman sleepers from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Yellowston Park owstone Park.

The scenery en route is the most magnificent to be found in the seven states through which the road passes. Beautiful mountains, rivers, valleys, lakes and plains follow each other in rapid succession to delight the tourists who will also find interest in the agricultural, mining, lumbering, industrial and other interests associated with the development of the great northwest.

The crowning glory of the trip through the northwest, however, is the visit to Yellowstone Park, the land of hot springs, geysers and gorgeous can-ons, and to Alaska, with its endless ocean channels, snowcapped peaks, In-dian villages and giant glaciers.

If you wish to investigate this sugges-tion further send to Charles S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R. R., St. Paul, Minn., for copies of the hand-somely illustrated "Wonderland" book, Yellowstone Park and Alaska folders.
